

Compensation for artist Cor van L [REDACTED]

Holthe / AMSTERDAM - Painter and collector Cor van L [REDACTED] from Drenthe Holthe of Justice has been awarded damages of tens of thousands of guilders. Van L [REDACTED], was arrested last July for alleged falsification of paintings of the Groningen Ploeg painter Altink, get the money for the days when he falsely attached. compensation should also be seen as compensation for the non-pecuniary damage. The lawyer of the art dealer living in Holthe, mr. EJA Schön Field Assen, filed in July by Justice in Amsterdam a compensation of 80,000 guilders for damages. Earlier that year had shown an independent investigation by the Forensic Laboratory in Rijswijk that the Altink-paintings Van L [REDACTED] had introduced at well-established auction houses like Sotheby's or Christie's, did not show any traces of forgery. The auction houses in 1991 had some retired Van L [REDACTED] introduced Altink canvases at the last minute of the auction, as it were forgeries. By Van L [REDACTED] reports were filed for forgery with the result that the artist was called home and was detained for four days in Amsterdam. The auction houses in 1991 had some retired Van L [REDACTED] introduced Altink canvases at the last minute of the auction, as it were forgeries. By Van L [REDACTED] reports were filed for forgery with the result that the artist was called home and was detained for four days in Amsterdam. The auction houses in 1991 had some retired Van L [REDACTED] introduced Altink canvases at the last minute of the auction, as it were forgeries. By Van L [REDACTED] reports were filed for forgery with the result that the artist was called home and was detained for four days in Amsterdam.

Counsel Schön Field was previously know there are 100 percent sure that justice should be a pay damages because it wrongly hold his client. was disputing the amount of the sum, he said. Meanwhile Justice determined that the art dealer from Holthe entitled to compensation.

But the 80,000 guilders is sought shall not be paid. The final amount will not call the Van L [REDACTED] couple, but it would be sufficient to cover all legal costs. "And of course we are very happy that we got such a charge. This was proven once again that all allegations us to address were incorrect. "